WILLIAM SLIM

Lord William Slim was of lower middle-class origin. In 1914 Slim joined up & went to the Middle East, where he served with distinction throughout the war & earned a commission. He belonged to the Indian Army. Then war intervened. After a distinguished service as brigadier in the Abyssinian campaign of 1941, Slim assumed command of a division in Iraq, helping to depose Nazi-leaning rulers and to secure the Iraqi oil fields. In 1942, Slim had to lead shattered British troops and 9 Burma in a single-month what that ended at 1 MPAA, where the Japanese ran out of steam. Slim took the hit getting the fighting capability of British and Indian troops in early 1944, but at 1 MPAA was maintained fighting supplies & reinforcements with the Japanese, Slim mounted on a bold campaign that gradually took them to his strategic base, although that Japanese were able to destroy, the prolonged fighting had needed their 15th Army, in early 1945 Slim's 14th Army Slim against Japanese 57/45 ending the most brilliant British campaign: He took back, dominated, lost & brought them to the highest standards. He emphasized good coordination. He worked as high command of the British
